Custom or Special-Order Medium Requisition

Please allow three weeks for the preparation of specially ordered filter-sterilized media or supplements. This time is required for scheduling and preparation of the media (which takes several working days), for quality control, and for incubation sterility testing (which requires 14 days). If you need your order quickly, you may pick it up before the tests are complete but we will not be able to guarantee the product until the test results are available. Be sure to clearly describe any special ingredients or instructions important to the preparation of your medium. Use a separate requisition for each product requested.
